

MAR
14

THE INVISIBLE CHEF TO THE RESCUE

If you're like me and your most vivid memory of cooking was turning on the gas stove at age 8 and burning off your bangs, then you can see why I've avoided the kitchen as much as possible. However, when I found out about the mixes from The Invisible Chef, I knew they might be the thing that gets me back on good terms with hot appliances. These all-natural baking mixes are awesome and the best part is, all you have to do is add a few ingredients like eggs and milk in order to make everything from decadent French Breakfast Puffs (that are warm, smothered in warm butter, and coated with cinnamon sugar) to sweet and savory Lemon Blueberry Pancakes & Waffles.

The Invisible Chef also has a great story behind it. Two moms who also loved to bake started the company more than 10 years ago. After trying great recipes out on their families, they decided to launch their own business and I'm sure glad they did! Mainly because it means I can keep my bangs in tact, but also because it takes the hassle out of baking since they provide the nuts and bolts of each recipe. All you have to do is add a few simple everyday ingredients like eggs and butter. My bangs and I can definitely handle that.

Not sure where to begin? Don't worry, they've got recipes, bakeware, and online ordering to help get you started out on your baking escapades. You'll feel like Martha Stewart in no time. Or Adele. I felt more like Adele.