

WINTER FANCY FOOD SHOW FAVORITES

Posted on February 1, 2016 by theseasidebaker | Leave a comment

A few weeks ago I spent the weekend in San Francisco at the Fancy Food Show. This show showcases thousands of companies and products. Here are some of my favorite new (and old) items! Please note that I have not been compensated in any way (monetary or free product) for this post. As a true San Diegan, I arrived in a stormy, rainy San Francisco with an itty bitty flimsy umbrella and soaking wet Ugg boots. Therefore all of the photos shown below are from the company websites, because I couldn't risk my camera getting wet on the way there 😊

“Once upon a time, there were two bakers slash moms slash business entrepreneurs who wanted to take their national gourmet food company experience and rise above to a new level. In fact, the company’s first product line featuring Coffee & Tea Cakes was inspired by personal experience preparing unique, wholesome recipes for their own families.

Meet Terry: Say “hello” to Jill – they bring the talent, tips and tools that all became The Invisible Chef over 10 years ago. Today, this dynamic duo puts their passion into baking mixes rich in all-natural ingredients.”

The Invisible Chef offers a plethora of baking mixes that are easy to make and scrumptious. They are the perfect mix to have on hand when you want a delicious treat but don't have the time to make it from scratch. Whenever my kids have a sleepover, we always have ice cream sundaes. I can not wait to have the kids help me make homemade sundaes next time using this kit! Because I am The Seaside Baker, I almost always give baking related wedding gifts. I can't wait to gift this kit along with an ice cream maker for my cousin's upcoming wedding!